JOB S AND JOB CHART

Note jobs and rotation in your group journal. Common jobs:

LEADER OF THE DAY (LOD) A participant's LOD experience should be tailored to them.

- Works with instructors to provide leadership
- Checks in with instructors about the day's activities; relays the information to the group
- Leads games and traditions, may lead discussions when appropriate
- Helps the instructor make decisions about the day, such as mapping a route, choosing when and where the group will stop for lunch

COOK

- Helps prepare meals.
- Helps pick and hand-out snacks

CLEANING CREW

- Helps to wash all group dishes
- Stores and disposes of food and garbage properly

WATER OR CAMP MASTER

- Gets fresh water for cooking, cleaning, and washing hands
- Fills water bottles with purified water in the morning
- Helps with any other camp chores—laying tarps, pitching tents, and so on

LEAVE NO TRACE (LNT) GURU

- Helps ensure the group follows all principles of Leave No Trace (LNT)
- Runs "camp sweep" before leaving a site

JOURNALIST

- Carries and takes care of the group journal
- Writes a journal entry for the day's events and reads it to the group
- Reads off the jobs for the day

Other jobs may include photographer, energizer, and navigator. Consider coming up with creative names for the various jobs, such as Magellan for the Navigator or Maya Angelou for LOD.

PRO TIP

Boiling water is one of the most dangerous things in the wilderness. Turn over as much responsibility to participants as possible but remember that an instructor must light the stove and monitor kitchen safety.

SET GOALS I

According to Dave Kohl, professor emeritus at Virginia Tech., people who regularly write down their goals EARN NINE TIMES AS MUCH over their lifetimes as the people who don't, and yet 80% OF AMERICANS SAY THEY DON'T HAVE GOALS.

SIXTEEN PERCENT DO HAVE GOALS, AND

FEWER THAN ONE PERCENT ACTUALLY REVIEW THEM on an ongoing basis?

Guess which one percent?

Day 1: So I got there and they were already in a group. I joined and we all found a conversation between each other. We went inside and gathered all of our gear that took like 2 and a half hours! but the real jony began on the beach THAT TOOK 5 ~~hours~~ hours.

The first night things took a turn for best/worse depends on how you took it. but we not only saw a Sea otter!! but multiple racoons. I lost my trail mix that night... See ya tomorrow

DAY: 2 AHHHH! I slept like a baby! but ~~not~~ for the part when Henry woke me up because I thought he was THE racoon. other than that we began our 1st full day, it was rough and bumpy and we saw Jai fall in water. Not gonna lie I was glad it wasn't me. we crossed 3 tide crossings!! and in all of them I told myself to "not be the first on on this to fall!!" we got to the site, FINALLY! And I am/had a great time. Food was bomb. we'll see who wrights tomorrow

Day 3: Waking up today was tough for most, since today was/is our hardest hike. The day isn't over but so far we managed to make it 3 1/2 miles. We have been able to overcome giant boulders that made us struggle. A few things that stuck out to us were

Brenda falling out of THIN AIR ^{>L} & when we had to make a tide crossing but got stuck in a crevice.

We ate lunch & played cards then while the tide lefted we quickly

~~made~~ made our way to "Rope" to climb up it was soooooo (a lot of O's) But after making our way down Danny drew a giant hangman & others were running playing tag. After taking a break from our climb we continue on a beautiful sand way. We saw a cave & a eel eating a sea urchin...

While walking to our "campsite" but we made a detour & camped @ a Wood-sy Place. P.S. We saw a dead lion seal

Day 4: Today's layover day, so we were chillin'. Or so we thought. Just when we finished EGBS @ our new campsite, we felt the trickle of rain.

Night of Day 3

when we woke up, everything was wet @ various degrees. Every task seemed a lot harder to do as everyone felt so lethargic due to the rain. We now knew the merciless nature of rain.

↳ upon finishing the morning breakfast, GDTs, etc.) ^{~12:00pm}, we headed to the Norwegian Monument to play a few activities. Norwegian was pretty cool... with we camped there instead of the one we're in now (Norwegian - a lot bigger). At night, we had one of the best - if not, the best - dinner so far: some mac and cheese w/ summer sausage, sautéed veggies, and BACON. We had a hysterical dinner for no apparent reason and finished off the night with storm proofing and courage circle.

-It's gonna be a looong day tomorrow.

Day 5: Had a nice warm sleep but had to wake up early. 1:45 stopped at a beach to eat sun lunch thank God.

Day 6: Today's hike felt so short, but it was good. The sun was out and there was a nice breeze. There has not been much action today. hopefully something happens. Ok so we fought w/ the boys for a spot we didn't end up using so that's great, but i did take a mini nap on the beach. overall today was decent and light work, but im scared to be a leader tomorrow

Chase's glasses

Day 7: Today we woke up earlier (6am) because we had to hike and pick our spot since it's first come first serve. we have working sinks and flushing toilets along with mirrors.

Day 8: We woke up at 9:30am. Today is a layover day/chill day. The sun was bright & nice. The camp were staying at is so nice. Everything about today is nice. We went to lake. ~~stayed~~ stayed at the lake for over an hour. Swimming in the lake then washed clothes. later that day we had pizza. Tim & I were tanning. I wish this day can last longer. I never felt so relaxed.

Day 9: We just woke up! we already learned about calling collect (1-800-call-att) (1-800-225-277) & were doing good on time. Day were at camp now & since then we played spoons & camps. Watched Chase try & box with Carlos. Stretched, did 2.8 miles straight with no breaks. (Brenda wasn't kidding) & set up camp. now we've hung out, ate dinner (lunch & dinner), brushed our teeth & getting ready for courage circle. Im kind of excited but scared for tomorrow because if nobody listens to me im going to be sad, but im excited, but i get to decide breaks.
